

JAPAN'S TIRED, ALSO ALARMED, AS WAR GOES ON

Brings Mixed Emotions
To Public, Chiefly
Boredom

BUSINESS MAN IN "STRAIT JACKET"

Despite Defeats China
Is As Belligerent
As Ever

(By Associated Press)
TOKYO, March 7.—Japan is tired
of the war which is eight months
old today. Also she is quietly alarmed.

The war has brought a victory to
the Japanese army, perplexity to the Japanese government, a strait-
jacket to the Japanese business man and mixed emotions, but chiefly boredom, to the Japanese public.

On the night of July 7, 1937, Japanese soldiers drilling in North China fired what their officers said were blank cartridges. They clashed in the dark with Chinese
troops and soon real bullets began
to bury themselves in human flesh.

Each Accuse the Other
Japan and China accuse each other of the original attack. Whatever the truth, war developed from an unimportant incident and quick-spread.

Despite a succession of military
defeats, including the loss of the capital at Nanking, China appears to be as belligerent as ever. Her leaders have told the world they would not even consider a peace
that did not include complete
withdrawal of Japanese troops from Chinese soil.

Japan never expected such intransigence. China, far from collapsing, still is on her feet and fighting. For Japan, it is a dilemma with sharp horns.

She either can push deeper
across Asia's vast, sprawling, dustyyellow stretches, spending more blood and money in an effort to control 400,000,000 submissively
hostile people.

Or she can retreat to the coastal enclave having achieved her
avowed objectives. "To uproot Communism from China, chastize
the anti-Japanese element in the Chinese government and win China's friendship."

Explanations Vary Neutral observers offer varying explanations of this war. Three different schools of analysts believe:

1. That Japan is fighting a "preventive" war to forestall the unifying influences that were modernizing
and strengthening China.
2. That Japanese big business, frightened by the ambition of the Japanese army in domestic politics,
"gave" this war to the army to keep
it occupied.

3. That China's Generalissimo, Chiang Kai-shek, when he was kidnaped last year by leaders of powerful Chinese anti-Japanese forces, paid his ransom with a promise of full-fledged war with Japan.

Japan poured men into the mainland until she had a million troops under arms. Not all went to the China front. Between 75,000
and 100,000 went to strengthen the already formidable garrisons in Manchoukuo along the Siberian
border in case Russia threw her
weight into the balance.

Chinese Morale Grows
Japan hoped the fall of Nanking
on Dec. 13 would be the last big battle. But surprising morale grew in the Chinese army. The common Chinese mud-slogger was not running away. He dug in and fought.
And he died in droves.

A foreign Red Cross authority
estimates that 750,000 Chinese soldiers have been killed or have died from wounds. The highest estimate places Japanese losses at no
more than one-tenth of that figure.

Japan's main advantage, military observers have said, has been in

Scores Are Marooned As Busy Highway Becomes Waterfall

Torrents of water pouring down from Huntington Palisades and the Beverly Hills section washed out a section of the Roosevelt Highway, skirting Los Angeles' beaches. The roadway was swept into the sea, marooning scores at the exclusive Malibu Beach colony, a few miles north of this point. A Coast Guard boat, attempting to reach the colony, was driven back by the storm.

DR. BARCKHOFF INJURED HERE

Physician's Arm Broken; Thrown From Car As
It Hits Pole

Dr. Paul Barckhoff, 78, of 208 S.
Broadway, received a fractured left
arm in one of three accidents reported to police over the weekend.

The physician was injured at 10
a. m. Sunday when he lost control
of his automobile while attempting to close the right car door and the machine climbed the curbing on W.
State st., and struck a telephone
pole.

Dr. Barckhoff, thrown from the machine, was taken to Salem City
hospital by a passing motorist, G. B.
Barnum of Canton. The mishap occurred after the doctor had driven over the Pennsylvania railroad tracks en route west on W.

woman walked into his automobile
at the corner of E. State st., and Lincoln ave., at 7:50 p. m. Saturday,
but apparently was unhurt, for she
continued on her way.

Robert Weingart of Berlin Center escaped unhurt when his automobile crashed into a car parked on
W. Pershing st., at 1:20 a. m. Sunday. The parked machine, owned by Russell Jackson of 394 W. Pershing
st., was, in turn, shoved into a light
pole.

Patrolman Clifford Todd and Safety Director C. E. Donahay arrested Weingart on a charge of reckless driving. Arraigned this morning
in Mayor George Harroff's court,
Weingart was fined $25 and costs.

Pestilence Feared In Los Angeles Area

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—
Health officials, alert against the threat of pestilence, made typhoid inoculations throughout flood-
devastated southern California today.

No cases of the disease have been reported, but sanitation conditions were reported dangerous. Typhoid serum was flown to Colton, near San Bernardino, where the water supply was cut off.

The toll of death and missing in
the giant deluge last week was raised to 183 with reports from the San Bernardino region last night.

Most recent estimates of damage
to private and public property still stood at the $65,000,000 mark.

Armies of workmen labored to dig the flooded area out from
under its blanket of silt and mud.
Ten thousand homeless were being cared for.

Officials minimized threats of further floods and said dams are adequate to accommodate expected
rains.

Telephone and telegraph communication virtually was normal.
Most highways were open to necessary traffic. Railroads accommodated passengers with the aid of buses.

under way today with dealers reporting a genuine and widespread
interest in the movement instituted
by the auto industry as one means
of aiding business revival.

Used Car Week Exchange week ob-

Kidnaped Youth's Father Believes Son's Still Alive

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., March
7.—Murray Levine, father of kidnaped 12-year-old Peter Levine,
said today that he believed his son
was still alive, despite continued
failure to make actual contact with the abductors. He also said he believed he was dealing with the true
kidnapers.

Commenting on the last ransom
note demanding $30,000, but declining to say when he received it,
Levine said:

"With the last note there was
some indication my boy was alive,
and that I was dealing with the right party."

He would not say what the "indication" was. Presumably, he referred to a note in the boy's handwriting, in which Peter reportedly begged his father:

"Please give the men the money.
I have a bad cold."

The haggard father, in his first
extended interview with newspaper
reporters who have yielded to his request to remain away from the Levine home, said there had been
"no contact at any time" with the
kidnapers.

Meanwhile, New York police continued to drain Indian lake, in Crotona park, the Bronx, on a "tip"
by an anonymous telephone caller
that the boy's body would be found
in the middle of the pond.

It was expected that the basin
would be emptied late today.

Police and federal agents have avoided participation in the case because of the father's public
plea he is permitted to deal alone
with "the holders of my boy."

Pleads Not Guilty On Traffic Charge

Fred C. Nebb, 30, of Struthers, arrested by Corp. Winston Arey and Patrolman Ralph Perry of the Salem state highway patrol, station Saturday afternoon on a charge of driving while intoxicated, pleaded
not guilty when taken before Mayor George Harroff.

Nebb was bound over to the grand jury and then released after a friend provided $500 bail.

The officers stopped the Struthers
motorist while driving on U. S. Route 62, north of Salem.

Mrs. Joseph Montano of Salem,
arrested by police Saturday night
on a charge of intoxication, was given a suspended fine of $100 and costs by Mayor George Harroff because she agreed to leave the city
within 15 minutes.

HARRY SPARKS IS LAMBASTED BY GOV. DAVEY

Attacks Engineer Who Testified Before Senate Committee

"HOT, COLD MIX" REPORT IS ASKED

Governor Calls On Committee of Professors
To Act

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 7.—Gov. Martin L. Davey today asked his special highway committee of university
professors to make a report on "hot
and cold mix" highway paving
projects "as quickly as possible."

The governor also leveled another
shaft at Harry Sparks, bituminous engineer of the highway department who gave damaging testimony
before the senate investigating committee on highway department management and whose position Davey
has ordered abolished.

Call for "Facts"

In a letter to Prof. C. T. Morris,
chairman of his special highway
investigating committee, the governor called attention to testimony
given before the senate committee
and declared he wanted to "know
the facts."

"Every fairminded and informed
person knows that this testimony
was one-sided, carefully coached,
and was given as the result of collusion," the governor wrote. "Everyone knows that the highway department was never permitted to furnish witnesses or evidence in defense of its good name. The result has been a state of bewilderment."

"No doubt everyone will believe
in your fairness and impartiality,"
the governor said of his committee
of professors.

"I would like to know the facts
You will recall that I gave your committee unlimited authority to investigate everything, and that I told you in the beginning all I wanted was the facts."

Aroused His Indignation

The governor said he did not object to Sparks testifying before the senate committee, then enumerated
five things which he said "aroused
my indignation."

They were that Sparks never had complained to anyone that he thought estimates on "hot and cold
mix" were too high until after the 1937 season work was completed;
that he never had voiced criticism
of the highway department "until
the Scripps-Howard newspapers had started their vicious attacks on the highway department."

"That he had been in collusion
with those newspapers many weeks
before he had mentioned the subject to department officials; that he never brought a complaint to the governor's office; that if he had complained to officials and they had not acted he then would have been justified in going to the newspapers."

Att'y Gen. Herbert S. Duffy said
today he had been advised by stenographers who took the testi-

Toronto Woman, 38, Roomer, 40, Victims Of Murder, Suicide

TORONTO, March 7.—Mrs. Rosetta Graham, 38, and John Newburg, 40, a roomer in her home,
were shot to death at her home
early today in what Police Chief Thomas Wilson termed a murder
and suicide.

Mrs. Graham was shot once
through the heart as she lay sleeping beside her daughter, Thelma,
18, Newburg's body, a 38 caliber
revolver by its side, was found in the kitchen where he had slept.

Chief Wilson and Sheriff Robert
Bates, who joined the investigation,
said Thelma told them Newburg
entered the room where she and her mother were sleeping and twice pulled the trigger of the gun. When it failed to discharge, he left the room and then fired a shot outside,
she said.

The girl said the roomer re-entered the bedroom and fired one shot at her mother. She reported
she heard another shot several seconds later, and found Newburg
dead in the kitchen with a bullet
wound in the left temple.

Police said no motive for the
double shooting has been established.

mittee meeting of city council

pected to confer with the council-
men. Practically all the dirt streets
in the city are full of holes and ruts, council has been informed.

gun battle Feb. 5, that also claimed
the lives of two suspected bank robbers.

Britain Will Arm If Italy-Germany Peace Talks Fail

Chamberlain Outlines His Course In House of Commons Today

HOPES TO PREVENT DRIFT TOWARD WAR

If Negotiations Succeed, Disarmament Will Follow

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, March 7.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the house of commons today that, if vital peace talks with Italy and Germany failed, Britain would
speed up her already gigantic re-
armament program.

But he said if the negotiations
succeeded disarmament would follow in due course.

The conservative majority repeatedly cheered the prime minister as he explained his policy
of rearming and at the same time
trying to prevent Europe drifting
"toward the cataclysm of war" by means of frank talks with the leaders of Italy and Germany.

Answers Opposition

Answering opposition charges
that he was biased in favor of the dictators, Chamberlain in a
fighting speech replied:

"I have to deal with a world in which dictatorships exist. I have no interest in other systems of government except insofar as they react on other countries. I have no bias in favor of Nazism, Fascism or Bolshevism, because all
of them seem to be inconsistent
with what is all important to me
because it is the root of my political creed—that is, individual liberty."

The prime minister, opening a momentous "full dress" debate on defense and foreign policy, repeated the government's prediction of
last week that the original estimate
of $7,500,000,000 for the five-year
plan launched last year would not be sufficient.

"The course we are pursuing by putting forward our present program is the surest way of avoiding
the dread necessity of fighting at all," he said.

Based on "White Paper"

The debate, involving foreign policy as well as rearmament, was based on the government's "white paper" of March 2, estimating 1938-39 armament costs at $51-
750,000 pounds ($1,758,750,000).

Both the labor and liberal opposition parties introduced amendments asserting that rearmament
was excusable only if used to reinforce a policy of collective security,
which some of Chamberlain's recent statements, expressing doubts
of the effectiveness of the League
of Nations, have appeared to abandon.

Both home and Mediterranean
fleets opened a day and night
series of seven tactical exercises
"westward of Gibraltar" to test
naval strength.

Stolen E. Liverpool
Jewelry Found at Salem Postoffice

Police at East Liverpool today
arrested two youths in connection with a $5,000 jewelry theft after
a package, containing part of the
load, was recovered in the Salem
postoffice by Postmaster Earl Beard-
more.

The jewelry had been stolen from the home of Mrs. John Goodwin in East Liverpool, Feb. 2.

The package, addressed to Mrs.
Goodwin, was dropped into the box
outside the local postoffice several days ago, minus postage. Postmaster Beardmore notified the addressee
and in the meantime the East Liverpool police arrested the suspects.

One of them, Robert Unger, 18,
of East Liverpool, was previously
freed under $3,000 bond on a charge
of breaking and entering another East Liverpool dwelling. The second
youth is the son of a former East Liverpool patrolman.

Dayton Workhouse
Break Is Thwarted

DAYTON, March 7.—A work-
house guard nursed head wounds
and a prisoner was recovering from
a bullet wound in the wrist today,
the casualties in a vain attempt of
three men to break from the institution.

Guard Harry Woods was knocked
unconscious with a lead pipe
yesterday when Edison Ginter,
George Huffman and Herman Snyder, all of Dayton, made their short-lived escape. Unable to start Guard Louis Infante's automobile,
the trio fled on foot as Infante
fired at the men, wounding Ginter
in the wrist.

The three were captured in a nearby barn.

Assault Charged By Elkrun Twp. Man

LISBON, March 7.—A warrant
charging assault has been sworn
out for the arrest of P. A. Barcus, Elkton, in Justice of the Peace M.
K. Zimmerman's court.

Barcus is charged with attacking
George McCamon, Elkrun township,
with a hammer two weeks ago in a
dispute over possession of a strip of land. According to information received at Prosecutor Karl Stouffer's
office, Barcus struck McCamon on the head and face with the hammer when the latter accosted him
while Barcus was nailing a sign on a tree.

The victim, confined to his home
by his injuries, signed the warrant
following an investigation by George Curran, county detective.

List 20 Cases

LISBON, March 7.—The prosecutor's office announced today that 20 cases have been listed for the April 18 grand jury session.

These include charges of burglary, hold-up, felonious assault
and drunken driving.

WHO SHOULD PAY?

The argument that benefits and taxes should be closely related in the Muskingum conservancy district has survived two court tests and goes next to the state supreme court. It's beginning to make an impression.

It is typical of a debate destined to grow hot if the present tendency toward spending for the benefit of specific districts continues. The federal government, for instance, is spending millions of dollars for the benefit of a district called Tennessee Valley Authority—a sample of what it hopes to do, eventually, on a much larger scale. Money for this purpose is obtained from taxpayers everywhere. Some of them not only receive no benefit, but are actually harmed by what their government is doing.

Wealthy states always have resented the fact they provided most of the federal government's income and did not derive most of the benefit. Counties, also, have been aware of disparity between what they contributed to the state and what they got back. Yet, because these spending units are well established, the argument about them is largely academic. That is not the case with new spending districts.

There's a limit to tolerance of their spending. It is determined, first, by what is thought of the importance of what they are doing. A Passamaquoddy tide harnessing project, for instance, doesn't get to first base, once it is opened to criticism. The second factor in determining how far spending should go is tolerance of the spending unit. Thus, the federal government is permitted, even encouraged, to spend exorbitantly. But when it begins to spend exorbitantly for the benefit of a particular region, as it is doing in the name of the Tennessee Valley Authority, there is criticism.

The idea that benefits should be hooked up to ability and willingness to pay for them—that those who pay are entitled to receive—is well established. The support it has received in the suit to restrain Muskingum conservancy district from issuing bonds which would be retired out of tax revenue from unbenefited as well as benefited property in the district may be the means of turning attention to an important and growing issue in tax policy.

FIVE YEAR PLAN

The passing of the Roosevelt administration's fifth year was marked chiefly by mild surprise that it has been so long a time since the country started on a new political cycle.

As it turned out, the country started, not on one but two new cycles. The first was short lived: Mr. Roosevelt's original retrenchment program. The second has lasted for more than four years: the first and second new deals.

Now in March, 1938, there exists a fund of knowledge distilled from this experience which did not exist in March, 1933. Even though to a large extent it is knowledge of what won't work, rather than what will work, its existence represents a net gain in political education.

Americans know today that they are not going to be led into the More Abundant Life by a formula, any more than Russians, Germans, Italians, Frenchmen or Englishmen are going to reach their goals that way. There are no political or economic secrets which can save the world.

There are only ageless rules of sense, dealing with such unexciting things as financial solvency, consistency of purpose, soundness of objective and thorough administration of rules which are worth administering in the first place. The five years consumed in learning about these things passed quickly.

NAVY PLANS "MOSQUITO FLEET" EXPERIMENT

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The navy is getting ready to spend $8,000,000 on experimental air and surface craft which some officials eye dubiously, but nevertheless are eager to try.

That sum is earmarked in the billion-dollar fleet expansion bill to build a dirigible and swift "mystery" coast patrol boats recently developed by foreign powers.

Concentrating on replacement of aging battleships and other large craft, the navy heretofore has turned its back on the possibilities of a "mosquito fleet." Officers have called such craft ill-suited to American defense needs.

More Than Defense

Senator Borah (R-Ida.) declared in a statement last night, however, that testimony before the house naval committee left no doubt the expansion program contemplated something more than national defense.

"Every war in these times is for defense. The world war was for defense on both sides. Japan is now, according to her statements, conducting a war against China in self defense."

"I do not believe that this huge spending program can be justified upon any reasonable conception of national defense," Borah added, declaring it was "a long step toward world bankruptcy and possibly toward war."

proof that the lesson must have been engraving—and still is.

GABRIELE D'ANNUNZIO

Gabriele D'Annunzio must have come close to Benito Mussolini's requirements for a great citizen. He not only said he longed to live dangerously, but actually did live dangerously on many tingling occasions.

He had spirit and imagination—spirit enough to make him a national hero and imagination enough to make him one of Italy's best known poets. He had eccentricity and a sense of humor, too, but they did little for him, except to make him live more pleasantly with himself, perhaps.

Most pronounced of all his characteristics—the sum of all the rest of them—was his non-conformity. He was likely to do the most unexpected things at the most unexpected times. He even declared war on Italy once. But just preceding the march on Rome in 1922 he fell from a window and was unconscious for weeks.

When he recovered, fascism was enthroned and so was D'Annunzio; with one exception, he never was known to be in disagreement with the dictatorship. His death, on the eve of his 75th birthday, ended an interesting career in adventure, poetry, non-conformity and eccentricity.

The climax of the career seems to have occurred, however, in 1922.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, March 8

A very active and interesting day is forecast from the predominant planetary configurations. There may be good news, new contracts and much interesting publicity promoted by secret or tacit agreements or intrigues. An advantageous change looms. Business or property at a distance may aid in stabilizing the affairs. It would be well to be tactful and discreet with the opposite sex.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively and eventful year, with much stirring in connection with publicity, advertising, hasty news or travel. New contacts are in order, and change or distant matters may prove a stabilizing factor in advancing the fortunes. Tact, even subtlety and intrigue, may prove more lucrative than impetuous and direct methods.

A child born on this day may be lively, energetic, industrious and versatile, but likely to get itself into mischief or tight places by its impetuosity, recklessness and love of fun and adventure.

FIBROIDS

I have been asked to write about fibroids, tumor-like growths of the womb. It is a rather common condition, but many women unnecessarily worry about it.

Fibroids usually appear at that period called the "change of life." Of course, they may occur at any other time and are occasionally met in young females.

Too often the patient believes her condition is merely a symptom of the "menopause," the medical name for "change of life." She may refuse the necessary medical examination, believing, perhaps, that the discomfort is merely temporary and in time will disappear. She treats herself with home remedies and fails to get the expert treatment essential for cure.

It is probable that the majority of those who have this trouble avoid the doctor for one chief reason. Since many cases of fibroids require operation, they avoid medical attention for fear operation will be advised. In reality, delay increases the seriousness of the condition and the urgency of surgery.

Doesn't Mean Cancer
Do not be misled into the belief that a fibroid of the uterus means cancer. As a matter of fact, these tumors are harmless, "benign" the doctors call them. But let me point out that sometimes what in the beginning was purely benign may degenerate into a form of tumor known as "pre-cancerous." If the neglect continues, it may become actually a form of cancer.

Fibroids vary in size, shape, number and location. They may be as small as a pin point or they may be as large as a grapefruit. The larger form causes so much pressure as to require an operation which should not be delayed.

A victim of fibroids may have little or no pain. The existence of the tumor is accidentally discovered in a routine examination given for some other reason. But if pain and discomfort are present, especially if a discharge or blood is present, the physician should be consulted immediately. Follow his advice and instructions carefully. If he advises operation do not neglect or delay this important procedure. If the tumor is small, it may well be that surgery will not be necessary.

I have always recommended regular health examinations. This rule is especially important for the woman of middle age who suffers from certain menstrual disorders. Many unsuspected cases of fibroids would be detected if everybody had periodical examinations. Abnormal conditions would be discovered before they had a chance to become dangerous.

"Women In Love" by May Christie

CHAPTER XXIV.

Hours passed. With extraordinary feistiness for Ann. The after-theater crowd arrived, surging into the room so that tiny space upon the dance floor grew infinitesimal. That meant that Paul could hold her—perhaps unconsciously—more closely as they danced. He did so.

Came a South American bolero. He had booked Rosalind, his hostess, for this number. But Rosalind was in no condition to attempt the intricate steps. They sat it out.

Ann knew the dance. The music seemed to sweep her over blue tropical seas. Across the floor of the nightclub, a tall, definitely good-looking man was approaching the table.

"May I have the pleasure of this dance, Miss Delafield?" He stopped in front of her.

It was Tim O'Hallahan, the silk manufacturer.

Vladimir Irishman that he was, Tim danced the bolero with grace and verve.

Few at the El Morocco could perform. Many fell by the wayside, figuratively speaking. Except for a couple of professional dancers, soon they had the floor to themselves.

The eyes of many people were upon them. What was Paul Bradley thinking, wondered Ann.

Presently, over Tim's shoulder she saw him rise from the remains of dinner—the waiters were now clearing away for supper—and accompany the hostess out to the crowded bar.

The music finished with a wild banging on the drum, and click of the castanets. "Let's go out to the bar, Miss Delafield. We deserve a bit of a wee snifter after our performance," her partner suggested in his rich Irish brogue.

Knowing Paul was there, Ann was nothing loath.

One empty little table-for-two was near the long counter. Tim grabbed it. Hailed a waiter. Before she could stop him he had ordered a bottle of champagne.

"Shure an' it's an unexpected pleasure, running into you here, Miss Delafield! I was at a loose end. Dropped into a show and came on here, shure that I'd find some of the boys. But niver did I imagine such good luck!"

The waiter brought two glasses, and the bottle of champagne set on a bucket of ice. He twirled it about.

"I can only wait a minute," Ann said nervously. "I'm in Rosalind Barclay's party. I'll have to go back."

"Not until we've drunk to the occasion," replied Tim genially, a light of very obvious admiration shining in his eyes. "Hey, waiter, get a move on!"

"It isn't cold enough, sir—" "The devil with it! We're thirsty!" Tim grabbed the bottle, wrenched the wire off, and with a terrific pop and splash the cork flew to the ceiling. Paul Bradley turned around. Saw Ann with the silk manufacturer. They exchanged nods, briefly.

"Shure we can't get away from business. But it's not business I'm thinking of," said Tim O'Hallahan, contradicting himself in true Irish style. "I'm thinking of a girl with eyes as bewitching as the sea pools in the rocks of Connemara! With a voice as sweet as the breeze over Killarney! Here's to that darlin'!" And leaning towards Ann, he tipped his glass to his lips and drank deeply, beaming at her over the rim.

"What a wonderful command of language, Mr. O'Hallahan! Blondes and brunettes, I suppose they all get that toast from you?" she laughed.

"Shure only one gets it, Miss Delafield. Och! don't be angry with me! 'Tis a long time I've been waiting for this moment!"

There was no stopping Tim O'Hallahan. Rosalind's long table was deserted, all her guests being either at the bar or on the dance floor. And there was something stimulating in his open admiration. Handsome, well-dressed, prosperous, and kindly, one needn't be ashamed of the manufacturer.

Ann drank her champagne gratefully, for she was thirsty. Heard his voice croon on in cadences that would woo a bird from the bough. Amusing folks, the Irish! Born flirts, most of them. Here was a sample. He was telling her she was as lovely as the Colleen Bawn . . . and the next minute likening her to one Kate Kearney who had turned the heads of all the young fellows who swarmed to her cottage in the Gap of Dunloe!

"An' will ye dine with me one evening, Miss Delafield? Shure I'll be fairly counting the days!"

"I don't go out much in the evenings. You see I'm pretty tired after the day's over, and often I work late," she parried.

"Are ye fond of music?" he asked anxiously.

"I'm mad about it."

He beamed.

"Then may ye'd let me escort you to the Opera one evening? Take pity on a lonesome bachelor and say 'yes' will ye?"

She put her glass down on the table.

"It's awfully kind of you to suggest it, Mr. O'Hallahan, but I'm afraid it would be well—against the policy of the store, I mean, for me to be seen with you alone in public. I know it sounds silly, but as we do have business dealings pretty frequently, it might be misunderstood if we were—what shall I say?—to appear socially together."

"But lots of buyers do it," he pleaded, "just because you're clever and forging ahead, you can't shut yourself up in a glass cage."

"I'm sorry. It's impossible." But Ann was troubled, for he was so eager, so kindly and good-natured, and she really liked him.

He drummed disappointedly on the little table. There was a pause.

Then his face lightened as he suggested sending two tickets to her for next Monday night's "Samson and Delilah." "They're seats in a box, if I remember rightly. Didn't you once mention your mother being fond of the Opera? You could take her, Miss Delafield."

Now Ann knew that Lolly would love that fashionable evening at the Metropolitan. For, since the crash, she had had to relinquish her much-cherished love. To see and be seen was as great a passion with Lolly as was the music of Debussy. So she accepted the manufacturer's offer of two tickets.

"I'll come by your office and give them to you Monday morning." This was Saturday night.

"Oh, no. It might be noticed. Not that there's any harm in taking them," she amended quickly, "but if you'd mail them to my home, I think it would be better."

"Okay. May I have your address, please?" He took from a pocket of his evening vest a little notebook and a pencil, and at that psychological moment Paul Bradley passed their table with Rosalind Barclay, overheard the question, saw the gesture, and in a quick, astonished look at Ann, saw her flush scarlet, as though guilty.

One in the morning. The party continuing. Growing larger, noisier. Everything humming in beautiful melody in Ann's ear.

This was real living. Glamorous setting. Glamorous man beside her. The champagne mounting. Laugh-

Who was she dancing with? Paul Bradley? But no, it wasn't Paul. It was Tim O'Hallahan, the handsome silk manufacturer to whom she gave so many orders. Why was she dancing with him when he wasn't in her party? Wouldn't Rosalind be angry? Was it because having declined to let him take her to the Opera, she wanted to make it up to him?

Someone was pushing his way through the packed dance floor towards her, taking her from her partner with an "Excuse me! My turn!"

Dizzily, Ann found herself looking up into the face of the merchant-discount-manager, which wasn't smiling now, as at the commencement of the evening, but looking rather stern.

Was her face flushed? Was her hair untidy? Did she look as though she had had too much champagne? But it was fashionable to be giddy at these nightclub parties. Paul was an agreeable partner. "Are you an ogle, Mr. Bradley?" she heard her own voice ask.

"No. But when you're ready, I think it might be a good idea to get away from all this. Time's moving along."

"Don't you like to dance with me, Mr. Bradley?" Lovely how the champagne gave one such a freedom from convention, so that one didn't stick at personal questions. Why shouldn't one find out what was so vitally important as his feeling, or lack of feeling, for her? Weren't inhibitions antiquated?

"Yes. I do love dancing with you. You dance beautifully. But I don't want you to take any more champagne."

The words cut clearly through the blissful haze about her. She stiffened. Drew away. "Let me get my cloak, please."

Her caught her to him, the little fracas unnoticed by the other dancers. They moved on.

"I don't want to seem like an ogre or an old grandfather," he told her, and now he was smiling. "You know, Rosalind's drinks are very potent. We've all had plenty. Time to put on the brakes, little girl!"

The diminutive was heartening. She heard her own voice saying, breathlessly: "But I don't want to put on the brakes! I want to be happy, and I'm terribly happy dancing with you! I'm—thrilled!"

The music finished. Putting a strong hand under her elbow, he piloted her up to Rosalind who, as she now expressed it, was "gloriously shemozzled." Rosalind loudly lamented their departure, but insinuated they might have an even better time where they were going . . . at last! whoopee!

A big white moon shone over the East river, made the tall buildings seem like fairy castles towering into silvery skies.

It was part and parcel of tonight's glamour, thought the couple who emerged from El Morocco. There was a line of waiting taxis. Paul hailed one. The cold, keen air pulled Ann together, loosening little feathery curls about her face whose pallor was now whipped to a soft rose.

The taxi started, bowling her swiftly homeward.

She thought: "If it were only a longer drive!" So few, so aching few, were the occasions that she and Paul Bradley had had together!

His mind was a receiving station for her wish. Or the same desire rose simultaneously in him, too. For when Third Avenue was reached, he told the driver to take a turn through Central park, round by the reservoir.

She leaned back in the cab, very near him, her black velvet wrap an effective background for her beauty. He drew out a flat gold cigarette case. Smoke?

"Please."

She noted the long, fine lines of the hand that cupped the lighted match he offered her. She had woven dreams about those hands of his that looked as though they could be very gentle, though strongly moulded. And from them, surreptitiously, she glanced at the clean-cut face that had strength in every line of it. A face that one could trust . . . dear heaven! A face that one could love, illicitly!

And the impulse came to Ann to blow out that lighted match, to do what she had dreamed of doing this past age. To take that beautifully sculptured head in her two hands and draw it to her bosom, running her fingers through the thick, flatly brushed rumple into little-boy curls, as she had once seen it in the stockroom, when he had lent a hand to a tired employee who was struggling with the heavy bales of silk that had come in from the Orient.

So keen was this primitive impulse—fought down at once, of course—that Ann, her cigarette lighted, took it from her lips and drew a long, deep breath, like a swimmer coming up for air.

Theater Attractions

Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lionel Barrymore and others are featured in "A Yank at Oxford"

"A Yank at Oxford" is a comedy drama of undergraduate life at the famous university and presents Robert Taylor in his first athletic role. In private life a crack tennis player and horseman, a better than average swimmer, and with some experience as a college hurdler, Taylor is seen in the film as an all-around athlete from a small American college, who becomes a track and crew star at Oxford. Highlights in the scenic background of the film, which presents authentically life amid Oxford's spires and ivied towers, include the world-famous Oxford-Cambridge track meet and boat race, the May Week ceremonies such as the bumping races and intimate glimpses of undergraduate life in and out of college and on "The High," as Oxford's most famous thoroughfare is known.

Off To Bad Start

Lee Sheridan, star athlete of a small American college, is awarded a scholarship to Oxford, where his cockiness starts him off on the wrong foot. He earns the enmity of undergraduate Paul Beaumont, but falls in love with Molly, Paul's sister. Following a "de-bagging" and a fight with Paul in an Oxford tavern, Lee unexpectedly wins college sympathy and becomes a popular figure, stroking his boat to victory in the "bumping" races. Paul, meantime, has been conducting a dangerous affair with Elsa Craddock, wife of an Oxford bookseller. Lee prevents Elsa being found in Paul's rooms, takes the blame himself and is "sent down" by the Dean. Dan Sheridan, Lee's father, comes from America to see his son stroke the Oxford boat to victory over Cambridge, finds him expelled and takes matters into his own hands. With the help of Molly, he obtains a trick "confession" from Elsa. Lee is reinstated, his quarrel with Paul is finally mended and the two take victorious part in the greatest river event in the world.

At the Grand is a double feature program: "Little Miss Roughneck," with Edith Fellows and Leo Carrillo; and "The Kid Comes Back," featuring "Kid" Galahad," Wayne Morris, June Travis and Barton MacLane.

Maureen O'Sullivan, Robert Taylor and Vivien Leigh in a scene from "A Yank at Oxford" at the State tonight and Tuesday.

from her fluttery impossible mother to become a child star. Edith shows off her really excellent operatic singing voice for the first time on the screen.

The second film is a successor to the first Morris featured role as Kid Galahad, and gives the actor a part as a challenger to the champion who happens to be the brother of the girl Morris wants to marry.

Paul, meantime, has been conducting a dangerous affair with Elsa Craddock, wife of an Oxford bookseller. Lee prevents Elsa being found in Paul's rooms, takes the blame himself and is "sent down" by the Dean. Dan Sheridan, Lee's father, comes from America to see his son stroke the Oxford boat to victory over Cambridge, finds him expelled and takes matters into his own hands. With the help of Molly, he obtains a trick "confession" from Elsa. Lee is reinstated, his quarrel with Paul is finally mended and the two take victorious part in the greatest river event in the world.

mony before the senate investigating committee that the committee had directed that no copy be furnished him.

Duffy said it might be necessary for him to ask the court for a writ to compel the committee to furnish him a transcript of the evidence.

Available to Anyone
Sen. Albert D. Baumhart (R-Erie), a member of the committee, said the committee had not refused the attorney general a transcript, neither had it directed that one be furnished him. He said the committee had voted to file the entire transcript with its final report with the clerk of the senate and that the attorney general or any other interested person could have a copy made at his own expense.

Duffy said he might invite Senator Verner R. Metcalf (R-Washington) also a member of the committee, to act as his special counsel without compensation to bring an action to dissolve the Shaw Transport company which the committee charged was reaping excessive profits from its contract for transporting liquor for the state monopoly.

Metcalf has on several occasions called on the attorney general to take action looking toward dissolution of the company.

Senator Baumhart said the committee expected to meet this week to start drafting its final report. A partial report was made to the senate last week.

FIGHT PLANNED ON PROFITS TAX

Lamneck, Ohioan, May Be Asked To Lead Battle On Issue

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 7.—Republican house members talked today of getting a Democrat, Representative Lamneck of Ohio, to lead their fight for complete repeal of the undistributed profits tax.

If they follow that strategy, aimed at winning more Democratic votes, the repeal amendment to the tax revision bill would be offered in Lamneck's name.

First Big Test
A vote on the proposal late today or tomorrow was acknowledged by legislators to be the first big test of house sentiment on the administration's tax program.

As approved by the ways and means committee, the bill would impose no undistributed profits tax on corporations having net incomes of $25,000 or less. They would pay only a normal income tax of 12 1/2 to 16 per cent.

But larger corporations would pay what would be, in effect, a 16 per cent income tax, plus a 4 per cent surtax on any undistributed profits. It was this surtax which the Republicans wanted to eliminate.

Representative Vinson (D., Ky.), chairman of a sub-committee which drafted the revenue bill, predicted defeat of the repeal proposal.

Scraps Looming
The vote will be followed by scraps over the capital gains tax and a proposed new surtax on closely-held corporations.

A vote on the entire measure may be reached late Wednesday, after which the house will consider the naval expansion program.

The senate may complete debate late this week on the government reorganization bill. Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.) said ample votes were available to assure passage. Opponents are making determined efforts to modify the program.

In a statement last night, Senator Byrd (D., Va.) asserted the bill would keep federal spending above $8,000,000,000 a year and would "blast the last hope that the government can balance its budget."

Scolding of Child Seen A Motive In Six-Year Old Case

LEWISBURG, Pa., March 7.—A scolding given to a four-year-old child in a lonely mountain cabin Christmas day six years ago was viewed by authorities today as a link to a possible motive in a murder case.

District Attorney William L. Showers, pressing the investigation into the shooting of Mabel Nearhood in 1931 for which her father, Arthur, is being held, said:

"I understand he reprimanded the child before this happened." He added that he had "learned enough" from the girl's mother to warrant the investigation.

Nearhood was held without bail on a murder charge for the grand jury which meets May 16. He protested in the Union county jail that the shooting was as he originally explained it—that a pistol fell from a shelf, discharged accidentally, and the bullet pierced the child's heart. Showers quoted Mrs. Nearhood, now estranged from her husband, as saying the child was shot deliberately but that she kept silent under a threat from her husband that he would "kill her" if she did not agree with the story he would tell the authorities.

OFFER REWARD IN PLANE HUNT

Ohio Father of Boy and Girl On Lost Ship Succumbs

(By Associated Press)

FRESNO, Calif., March 7.—Eight planes searching for a vanished air transport and its nine occupants turned today to a 60-mile snow-covered stretch along the western slopes of the Sierra Nevada.

Aerial searches already have surveyed the region north and west of Bass lake, north of today's search area, which lies between Sequoia and General Grant national parks.

Adverse weather has hampered the hunt ever since the Transcontinental and Western air transport vanished in a storm last Tuesday night on a flight from San Francisco to Los Angeles. Hope practically has been abandoned for the six passengers and three crew members.

Jack Frye, TWA president, announced a $1,000 reward to any person "who finds and leads an official of the company to the plane."

The skyliner last was seen over a powerhouse in the mountains 40 miles northeast of Fresno at 9:20 p. m. last Tuesday.

A ground party was ordered today to check the report of John Sears that he had sighted the wreckage of the plane on the side of Goat mountain bordering Bass lake.

MANFIELD, March 7.—Jay Neil Dirlam, 55, building and loan company official, died of a heart ailment at his home here yesterday, unaware that two of his children, Tracy and Mary Lou Dirlam, Stanford university students, were aboard the airliner which has been missing near Fresno, Calif., since last Tuesday night.

Tracy and Mary Lou boarded the TWA transport to hasten to the bedside of their father after he suffered a serious relapse. When the plane vanished a few hours later, Dirlam was not informed, for fear the news would make his condition more serious.

Surviving are his wife, a daughter, two brothers, one sister and his father. Funeral service will be conducted here Tuesday.

Fire At Niles

NILES, March 7.—Company officials today estimated damage between $50,000 and $60,000 was caused by fire yesterday to the Republic Steel corporation's $3,500,000 tin mill plant here.

Three firemen were slightly hurt.

JAPAN'S TIRED AS WAR GOES ON

Brings Mixed Emotions To Public, Chiefly Boredom

machines, particularly artillery and airplanes.

Now, after eight months of this, two questions plague Japan's political and military leaders: what to do with China? What about the Japanese people?

They are trying to meet the first by establishing a government for five North China provinces and calling it the national government for all China.

At home the cry is for mobilization—of business, of finance, of the vast Japanese electric industry, "spiritual mobilization."

Drive Has Stalled
But there are strong indications this "spiritual mobilization" drive has stalled, although stoked by every engine of public control. It pounds at the average Japanese to save his money in order to pay, through higher taxes and increased living costs, for the China fighting.

Yet the Japanese people seem to be seeking escape from the strain of the "war without glory." New year trade in luxuries and gew-gaws shattered records. The amusement business is booming. Movies are packed. Expensive restaurants are occupied as never before.

Newspaper editors concede their readers are tired of war news. They are printing less of it.

Economically, Japan shows not the slightest strain. This has been a "cut-rate war."

Japan is spending only for the few raw materials she needs. Very little money, except for war expenses, has left her shores.

80 Per Cent Stays In Japan
Thus, the astronomical amounts Japan is appropriating for military expenses are not actually burned up. For 18 months of war Japan expects to spend $3,000,000,000.

But about 80 per cent of the while amount is spent in Japan. It never leaves the country.

Financially, the Japanese have hardly felt the weight of the China war. Commodity prices and taxes have increased, but not radically.

Temperamentally, it is another story. There is evidence the average Japanese has lost faith in his leaders and their course. Last summer's enthusiasm has given way to a deep, though inarticulate, questioning of motives and results.

Columbiana Woman Home Again After Journey Abroad

COLUMBIANA, March 7.—Mrs. W. N. Callar has arrived home after a five-month tour. On her itinerary were Galway and Dublin, Ireland; Liverpool, London and Dover, England; and Hamburg, Germany. The remainder of her stay was spent at the Italian Riviera at Alassio, near Nice and Cannes, France.

Mrs. Callar left New York last October 9 and took her car with her. Her daughter, Mrs. W. T. Watson, and children, who have been abroad for the past year, sailed from Hamburg last Wednesday and will land in Baltimore. Mr. Watson, a business man in South Africa, sailed from Southampton Saturday to join his family here.

Mrs. Callar had been with her daughter since Christmas.

All people of Columbiana and vicinity are invited to attend the Methodist church at 7:30 p. m. Friday to see the motion picture, "The Life of Christ," and the "Passion Play," depicting the story of Jesus, from the nativity to the ascension, which is patterned after the world-famous Freiburg and Oberammergau "Passion Play" of Europe, and which was actually filmed in Europe, and Holy Land and Egypt.

The program is being sponsored by the Epworth league, under the direction of Rev. J. C. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Heatherington and daughter, Donna, have moved from Orrville to the W. O. Wallace property, Lisbon and Cross streets, formerly known as the Beard property.

The Eastern Star chapter will observe its anniversary Tuesday evening, with Leetonia and Negley chapters as guests. Deputy Grand Matron Elizabeth Jenkins, Winona, will be present.

The Friendship class of the Methodist Sunday school held a covered supper Friday evening at the home of Mrs. C. H. Shontz.

Mrs. Jonathan Lower is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Iri Zimmerman and family, Akron.

The Sunday evening union service was held in the Methodist church, when Rev. J. C. Wilson preached, inaugurating a series of evangelistic events in the church. Special meetings will be held every evening this week.

The concert by the American Legion band scheduled for March 11 has been postponed owing to so many conflicting events.

STARK'S SCHOOL SHARE IS READY

County Has Its 60 Per Cent for Fairmount Building

LISBON, March 5.—Stark county is ready with its share in the Fairmount Home WPA school project county commissioners' reported Friday following a conference in Canton with Fred Roosevelt, WPA administrator for the Akron district.

The Stark commissioners have available to 60 per cent portion they must contribute to the sponsors' share of the cost. The other 40 per cent must be raised by Columbiana county.

Saving Is Seen
Construction of the school under the WPA will save the two counties about $50,000. If it were to be built under private contract, the cost would be $125,000, but under the arrangement which has been effected the counties will not pay more than $75,000.

The two steps which must be completed before work will proceed are WPA approval and certification of the Columbiana county share. Stark commissioners will offer their services to the Columbiana solons to help them raise the money.

Already Appointed
Roose explained during his conference in Canton that building commissions will not be necessary for the school construction since it will be included in a blanket WPA project and details of the work will be handled by the county commissions.

SHE RISKS HER LIFE FOR THE Movies

IONE REED, Hollywood's Daring Movie Stunt Girl, after a hazardous feat, asked for a Camel. And that led to the question: "I've noticed that you're a steady Camel smoker, Miss Reed. Do you have definite reasons for preferring them to other cigarettes?"

HERE'S MISS REED'S ANSWER: "Yes, indeed, I certainly love Camels. Camels are distinctly different in so many ways. Going through my stunts over and over is a severe test of healthy nerves. I smoke Camels all through the day, and my nerves don't feel the least bit frayed. Being so mild, they are gentle to my throat too. After a meal, I enjoy Camels—for digestion's sake." You see—in so many ways, Camels agree with me."

DARING? Yes! Foolhardy? No! Ione Reed knows what she's doing. And she is careful in her choice of a cigarette, because, as she says: "It means a lot to me to know that my cigarette agrees with me!"

Millions of other people find that Camels give them what they want in smoking!

It's Camels for star stunt girl—Ione Reed! It's Camels for the famous diving expert—Commander Ellsberg! And for golf champion Ralph Guldahl; speed tier Roscoe Turner; and men and women in all walks of life. If you are not now enjoying Camels, perhaps you, too, will find that it means a lot to smoke Camels—the cigarette that is made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS, Turkish and Domestic.

PEOPLE DO APPRECIATE THE COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN CAMELS

THEY ARE THE LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

FOR RECREATION Miss Reed likes cooking...dancing...outdoor sports. And Camels! "Hollywood seems to have a decided preference for Camels," she says. "I notice that so many of the stars prefer Camels."

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.

HOW TO PREPARE COLD-HOT MEAL

Mrs. Homemaker, With Dinner To Fix, Shows How To Enjoy Afternoon Off

Let's suppose that a certain Mrs. Homemaker, who is expecting guests for dinner, has received a most enticing afternoon invitation. What shall she do? Decline? Accept the invitation and serve only a mediocre dinner? Neither, if she's wise. She will prepare her meal completely in advance, go off for the afternoon, and on returning—simply put it in the oven!

The Lenten Season
Since this is Lent, she plays safe and decides on a meatless meal such as: Spaghetti in Onion Cups, French-Dressed Spinach, Reheated Rolls and Butter, Celery and Olives, and for dessert, warm, freshly baked Apple Pie and Coffee.

Imagine it, warm, freshly-baked Apple Pie! The "secret" lies in preparing the pie complete, except for its trip to the oven—in the morning. Then it is placed in the modern air-conditioned ice refrigerator, like the Coolerator that the Citizens Ice & Coal company handles in several sizes, where properly moist, vitalized air will protect it. When baked, this "cold storage pie" will be just as crisp, crunchy and full-flavored as one baked in the conventional manner. The entree is prepared as follows:

SPAGHETTI IN ONION CUPS
(Serves 6)
6 large Bermuda onions
2½ cups left-over, seasoned spaghetti or baked beans
6 thin slices of American cheese
½ cup tomato juice

Cook onions in water until tender, but not soft. Cut out centers and fill with spaghetti or baked beans. Top each serving with a slice of cheese and place in a baking pan. Add the tomato juice, then place in the ice refrigerator until ready to heat. The constant circulation of clean-washed air will prevent transference of the onion flavor to other foods. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 30-40 minutes.

Goes In Refrigerator
Next, season cooked or canned spinach with French Dressing, place in casserole and top with slices of hard cooked egg. This casserole, too, goes in the refrigerator, and follows the onion cups to the oven about 20 minutes before dinner is to be served.

At five or so, the last course of the meal is the first in the oven. Being chilled throughout, the pie requires a little longer baking period than usual. Pre-heat the oven to 450 degrees and bake the pie for 10 minutes; then reduce the heat to a moderate oven (350 degrees) and bake for about 50 minutes. Naturally, the pie will cool while the first course is being eaten; therefore the other dishes may be placed in the oven during the latter period of baking so that the entire meal will come out at the same time.

Reflects Racing Plane Design

The "tear-drop" front end of the new Lincoln-Zephyr V-type 12-cylinder cars for 1938 pictured above resembles the highly-streamlined front of a racing plane. The conventional radiator grille has been subordinated. The front is closed except for two openings near the bottom through which air is admitted to the engine compartment.

Farmers In Market For New Tractors Urged to Act Now to Insure Delivery

Early in 1936 and again in 1937 The International Harvester Company advised farmers who expected to buy tractors during the approaching seasons to get them well in advance of the spring rush.

Subsequent events in each of those years proved that their advice had been sound. The demand for the most popular make of tractors was far greater, both in 1936 and 1937, than the supply. As a consequence, many farmers were seriously delayed in obtaining delivery of tractors, while others had to be satisfied with some other make.

Advise Again
Just because they were right twice does not mean that they have any great ability as a prophet. However, they venture the prediction again that if any farmers expect to buy new tractors for this season's use they will do well to order them at once and obtain delivery as soon as possible.

There are several good reasons for this, according to the management of the Salona Supply Company, local distributors for the McCormick-Deering farm machinery line.

LENTEN DISHES TO BE FEATURED

Hainan's Restaurant Adjust Its Daily Menus to Season; Tasty Foods Prepared

Russell Hainan, owner and manager of Hainan's restaurant, is giving special attention to Lenten dishes. Each menu will feature well balanced meals, with this thought uppermost.

"There is no reason," Hainan says, "why a modern equipped kitchen cannot meet the requirements of any of its patrons, and certainly we are well equipped."

There are many combinations of foods which are most satisfactory and which do meet Lenten season demands—delicious cheese combinations, dairy products, fish and a wide variety of fresh garden vegetables and fruits.

Many will appreciate this Lenten service, as well as buying their meals or lunches in a quiet atmosphere where no intoxicating beverages are sold.

Defends Industry

Appearing before the LaFollette Senate Civil Liberties Committee, Robert L. Lund (above), president of the Lambert Pharmaceutical Co. and former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, defended the industrialists' use of company unions, but denied that any members of the association coerced workers.

SAFETY ANGLE IS EMPHASIZED

Industry Offers Modernly Equipped Cars At Low Price

National Used Car Exchange week is well under way in Salem as the local phase of a national campaign sponsored by the automobile industry to help business.

Dealers have on hand a wide variety of used cars, properly reconditioned to give thousands of miles of service.

The selection is said to be unprecedented in the industry's history. These cars, spokesmen for the industry assert, are now priced so low as to constitute bargain values unique in automotive annals. Many are among the 1937, 1936 and 1935 lines and include many features that are to be found in the newest cars.

Never before has the industry been able to offer such a wide selection of used cars at such rock-bottom prices.

Spokesmen for the industry point out that "too many unsafe, worn-out, unreliable cars, without modern safety brakes, safety glass, large tires and steel bodies are in operation today. Too many are costly to operate."

"Many of these cars can be replaced during National Used Car Exchange week—to the great advantage of the buyer—with newer, up-to-date cars on terms to suit the pocketbook of the average person. "These cars offer modern equipment and a good investment in comfort, safety and economy."

CLEANING AIDS GOOD MATERIAL

Knowledge of Fabrics, or Guarantee From Merchant, Will Insure Purchaser's Satisfaction

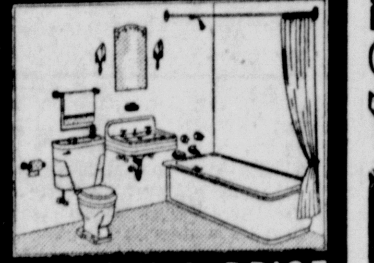

A woman may know just exactly what will or will not happen to the goods she buys, such as yard goods or ready-made garments, if she would take special pains to determine what's in them, or insist on a guarantee, says L. C. Price, manager of the Paris Cleaners.

Price knows how disappointed a woman can be when she is told that this or that can never be laundered or dry cleaned without shrinking.

He pointed out that we have more than any other single factor, is important in determining whether the fabric will shrink. Cloth is all woven under tension, stretched tight in the loom. When removed, almost every type will assume a smaller size. A firm weave, of course, will shrink much less than a loose type weave.

Some cloth is actually stretched in order to increase its square inches per bolt and sometimes sized to avoid shrinkage. Sizing, of course, will wash out or dissolve in the dry cleaning process.

Here's Ample Room for Luggage

LUGGAGE compartments in the six new body types of the Lincoln-Zephyr V-type 12-cylinder cars for 1938 are exceptionally roomy, as the above photo demonstrates. The compartment, reached through the rear deck hatchway, also encloses the spare tire and its supporting frame. When the deck is lifted, tire and frame are revealed. These can be swung down out of the way (as pictured) to give access to the luggage space. The compartment is amply big enough to stow the touring luggage of an entire family. The new Lincoln-Zephyr cars are longer and more dashingly sleek than their predecessors, displaying an entirely new impression of motor car styling. Wheelbase has been increased to 125 inches.

Quakers Look To District Tourney For Comeback Chance

SOUTH DEFEATS SALEM IN LAST SECTIONAL TILT

Quakers to Meet Akron North In District Meet Thursday

Soundly trounced in their final game of the sectional eliminations, Coach Herb Brown's Salem High school Quakers saw possibilities for a comeback today in their forthcoming game with Akron North in the northeastern Ohio district tournament at Akron.

The Quakers, who fell before Youngstown South, 27 to 14, in their last game of the sectional event at Youngstown last Saturday, will meet North's Vikings at 7:50 p. m. Thursday at the Goodyear gym in the Rubber City.

North was defeated only once during the regular season and won the Akron city championship. Canton McKinley handed the Vikings their lone set-back.

Although beaten by South in the sectional meet, the defeat had no bearing on the Quakers' right to compete at Akron. The Red and Black lads qualified for the district tourney Friday night by spanking Campbell Memorial, 33 to 20.

Salem also won over Niles, 47 to 28, in earning the right to try their luck in the N. E. O. district event. Twenty teams, in all, will compete at Akron, with five of these advancing to the state finals at Columbus.

In addition to Salem and South, other teams representing Youngstown section in the district tourney are Youngstown East, Struthers, Sciencetown and East Palestine.

East and Sciencetown also gained victories in the sectional tourney Saturday night, the former taking Struthers into camp, 40 to 29, and the latter defeating East Palestine, 42-33.

The Quakers showed up exceptionally weak in losing to South, failing to threaten the Youngstown champions at any time and being outscored in every period.

South was never in danger of dropping the decision after getting away to a six-point lead, 8 to 2, in the first quarter. The Steel City champs were out in front, 15 to 6, at halftime, and 21 to 10 at the close of the third period.

South outscored the Quakers eight points to two in the opening frame, seven points to four in the second period, six points to four in the third quarter, and six points to four in the fourth stanza.

The Quakers came near going scoreless in the first frame, but managed to break into the point column in the last minute of the opening period when Jim Dickey converted two free throws.

Only one field goal was made by the Red and Black lads in the first half, this by Dickey mid-way in the second quarter. South made five field goals in the first half and a similar number in the second half. Salem made but four field goals in the second half. Three of these were credited to Bill Schaeffer, who led the Quakers in scoring with six points. Ollie Oleksa accounted for the other second half fielder.

South's scoring was well divided with Manny tallying seven points, Gustafson six, Yark and Ellis each five, and Cramb and Macaulay two apiece.

Contributing largely to the Quakers' defeat was their run foul luck in shooting. The Red and Black lads had as many, if not more, shots than South, but could not drop the leather through the hoop with any amount of consistency.

The Quakers' offensive attack was slowed down considerably by South's zone defense. The Red and Black lads were unable to do much work around Macaulay and were stopped cold in their attempts to move the ball in close for short shots.

Defensively, the Quakers were about up to par. This is evidenced by the fact that they held the fast-breaking South team to 27 points.

Midwestern Bowlers Lead Chicago A.B.C. Tournament

CHICAGO, March 7. — Eighteen hundred midwestern bowlers completed the first week-end invasion of Chicago for the 38th annual American Bowling Congress tournament today and go away with the leadership in each of the four divisions.

Cleveland bowlers took the team standings, St. Louisians rank one in the all-events, a Clinton, Ind., pair leads the doubles, and a booster bowler from Indianapolis still holds to a narrow lead in singles competition.

Ted Siener of Indianapolis is king of the singles contestants with his 688. The closest the regulars could come to him on the Sabbath was a 675 by Steve Kenney of St. Louis.

The Marine City, Mich., Old Bru five and the Perry Club Co. of St. Paul, threatened the team leaders, but had to be content with places in the first five.

The Marine City team ended with a total of 2812, only 30 pins below the leading Service Dairy of Cleveland. The St. Pauls had a total of 2796.

Chris Tonkovic of St. Louis led all-events with 1866. John Colombo and Jules Bennett of Clinton, Ind., held the doubles lead with 1209.

AMATEURS MEET TUESDAY NIGHT IN FIGHT SHOW

Jimmy Perry to Present Second Card of Season at Memorial

Twenty-four rounds of leather swinging has been lined up by Jimmy Perry for his second amateur boxing show of the season which will be held at the Memorial building tomorrow night.

Fighters from Salem, Alliance, Minerva and Sebring will appear on the eight-bout program. Each of the fights will involve one of Perry's boys.

Built around Bill Hamacher and Don West, the card will get under way at 8:30 sharp with the curtain raiser bringing together two 100-pound lads, Leonard Quinn of Salem and Robert Johnson of Alliance.

Hamacher, a light-heavyweight, who came to Salem about two years ago from Buffalo where he had 10 amateur fights to his credit, is slated to cross mitts with Carl Ormiston of Sebring in the main go.

Hamacher showed plenty of class in his last fight when he effectively used a looping left hook to kayo Kid Preonna of Alliance in the second heat of a scheduled three-round bout.

West, who is a freshman at Salem High school and one of the leading underclass prospects for the Quakers' 1938 football team, will meet Vic Warrick of Sebring in the semi-final.

A win by decision over Enoch Henry of East Palestine in Perry's first show gave West a record of four straight victories.

Other bouts on the program will see Dick Scullion of Salem meeting Joe Devine of Alliance; Freddy Fox of Salem taking on Eli Steffell of Alliance; Bob Shannon of Salem facing Frank Spier of Alliance; Raymond Howell of Minerva battling Babe Frederick of Alliance and Eugene Altomare of Salem squaring off with Louis Arone of Alliance.

Fighters will be examined at 6:30 by Dr. R. T. Holzbach, city health commissioner.
